25X1

1. [redacted] construct work at Chisoda airfield, just south of Timisoara (R 16/T 90) had started about February 1950. Members of the same Battalion said in October 1951 the work at the field would take at least one year.
  2. The airfield is located between New Chisoda and Old Chisoda, about 500 meters east of the highway to Sap (R 16/T 90). It was a large open meadow which was generally known as Hut. [redacted] personnel wearing gray blue uniforms patrolled on the highway between New and Old Chisoda. More pedestrians and vehicles were not allowed to stop. Two new two-story buildings were erected southeast of New Chisoda and northeast of Old Chisoda. They were slightly larger than a standard dwelling house. Their foundations were brick structures, while the two stories were built of timber. Temporary buildings were being erected east of New Chisoda. Source could not determine whether they belonged to the field. There were other buildings the purpose of which could not be determined.
  3. In August 1951, [redacted] that take-offs and landings were made by two single-engine, low-wing motorcycles on the 400m concrete runway which extended between the new buildings southeast of New Chisoda and northeast of Old Chisoda. In November 1950, [redacted] Russian air force personnel were stationed at the field. Individual Russians wore a metal insignia representing a plane on the epaulets.
- * [redacted] Comment. The report confirms previous indications of the construction of a new airfield and runway south of Timisoara. It is believed that the runway is completed. For location of airfield, see Annex. No information is available on the dimensions of the individual projects.
